

Responsibility Pattern

Problem

You volunteered for the task of running a critical piece of infrastructure, e.g. the mail server, but you feel the sudden urge to slack.

Implementation

Just because volunteer work doesn't get paid doesn't mean it's less important. Remember that you will directly hurt your friends and the hackerspace. Take pride in your volunteer work. It will make you grow stronger as a person and is satisfying. When you realise that you really cannot do the job anymore, your last task is to hand it over.
